TIMOTHY GRIFFIN

Photography Instructor

Timothy Griffin is a photographer and instructor with a passion for helping people experience photography as a creative outlet. He has been taking pictures since he was 12 years old, when his father let him use a 126 Brownie box camera. Over the years, Timothy has always taken pictures everywhere he went.

While studying business and computer technologies at Macomb Community College and Wayne State University, Timothy discovered digital photography, which led to the excitement of exploring this new method of photography. He said, "I think I understand how past photographers must have felt when they were given their first roll of film instead of a stack of film plates."

Timothy's mission as a photographer is to use his skills and abilities to capture subjects in a setting and manner that show the person in a natural state. He enjoys teaching both adults and kids, passing on his passion of using creativity and technical knowledge to take great photographs.

Timothy spends most of his free time photographing many of the amazing sites in our area. He is a passionate photographer who is always looking for new ways to learn and is a strong advocate for education. He believes that everyone deserves the opportunity to succeed.
